Implementation Process

Implementation I

− Step 1: The employer must reach an agreement on the introduction of short-time work:
  - In companies without a works council: with each employee concerned
  - In companies with a works council: with the works council

− Step 2: The social partners (Chamber of Commerce and trade union) sign the short-time working agreement.

Implementation II

− Step 3: The employer must submit the following documents to the Public Employment Service:
  - the concluded agreement,
  - the application for short-time working allowance, and
  - the extent to which the company is affected by temporary, non-seasonal economic difficulties.

− Step 4: The Public Employment Service decides whether to grant or refuse short-time work assistance.

Further important remarks

- Vacation from previous vacation years as well as time credits should be used up before or during short-time work.
- Apart from certain exceptions, the consumption of vacation and time needs to be agreed upon between employer and employee.
- The employer needs to proof an honest effort to find an agreement in this regard.
- In the case of vacation/consumption of time credits during short-time work, the employee is still entitled to the full remuneration as before short-time work was implemented.
- Employment contracts may not be terminated until one month after the end of short-time work (obligation to retain). Under special circumstances, the obligation to retain employment relationships may be waived.

Alternative / Additional measures

- Unpaid leave
- Mutual termination agreement with a pledge of re-employment
- Redundancies (special notification obligation apply if a certain threshold is met)
- Consumption of vacation and time credits

Short-time work – Information for Europe
Characteristics of short-time work concept

- There are three types of short-time work:
  - A reduced working day (less than 8 working hours a day);
  - A reduced working week (less than 5 working days a week);
  - Both of the options;

Critical thresholds

There are now restrictions on minimum and maximum work reductions. On practice reducing in the range of 10% to 90% loss of work is used.

Employee consent

When reducing of working day duration a written consent is mandatory as well as changing a labour contract. With respect to remote employees conclusion of the supplementary agreement via the Internet or other network is applicable if such conditions are provided by the labour contract. The employer is entitled to set short-time work without an employee consent based on justified production or economic reasons. In this case he should notify an employee one month in advance. In the event of refusal of such changes an employee can be fired after a month of the notification had been received. The employer should pay a severance in the amount of two-week average earnings.

* hereinafter it comes to the standard 40-hour week

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

- Setting short-time work under mutual consent:
  - One of the parties should propose in writing to reduce working day duration (as a rule in the form of a statement or an offer);
  - When an agreement was reached an employer issues a relevant order with which an employee acquaints against signature;
  - The parties change the labour contract;

- Setting short-time work based on justified production or economic reasons:
  - An employer issues a relevant order and notifies an employee in writing a month before working time reducing;
  - Month later the parties change the labour contract or an employee is dismissed (see slide 2);

In both cases there is no obligation to seek the concurrence of state authorities as well as to agree on working time reducing in another form.

Settlement

- There are no special requirements to a settlement process except those, which are indicated separately herein.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

Employer
In principle, the National Employment (RVA) office must be informed of the existence of the force majeure. COVID-19: From 13.03.2020 to 30.06.2020 this obligation no longer applies.

The employer must issue a control document C3.2A to every employee who is temporarily made unemployed due to force majeure. COVID-19: From 13.03.2020 to 30.06.2020, the employer does not have to issue control cards C3.2A to employees who are put on temporary unemployment.

The employer submits an electronic declaration - ASR Scenario 2, if the employee has to apply for the unemployment allowance.

The employer submits an electronic declaration - ASR Scenario 5 - monthly, at the end of the month, for the temporarily unemployed workers. COVID-19: From 13.03.2020 to 30.06.2020 simplified procedure applies.

Employee
The employee must submit a form C3.2-employee to his payment institution at the end of the month. COVID-19: A simplified form is available on the websites of the payment institutions.

Settlement

– Employees who are temporarily unemployed due to force majeure are exempt from the (normally applicable) waiting period. This means that they can receive benefits immediately, without first having to provide proof of a certain number of working days. COVID-19: For the month of March, all allowances will be paid in April.

| The legal maximum duration to apply temporary unemployment due to force majeure is 3 months. | - When submitting an application for temporary unemployment a company may limit itself to giving COVID-19 as a reason. The employer no longer has to provide a detailed justification;
- The scope of application is extended to workers placed under house arrest as a preventive measure on the grounds that a close relative was infected with COVID-19;
- Days of temporary unemployment are taken into account for the calculation of the vacation pay of the worker concerned; and
- The National Employment Office (RVA) pays a daily supplement of 5.63 EUR, per day of temporary unemployment. | Temporary unemployment is financed by the Belgian National Employment Office. |

<td>In the Czech Republic, the employer might use the instrument of impediments to work on the side of the employer and entirely or partially close down the business. The employees that work short-time or not at all due to the impediments to work are then entitled to a compensation for salary in the amount depending on the specific type (reason) of such impediment. The most frequent impediments to work on the side of the employer that can the employer use upon its decision in connection with the situation with COVID-19 are Idle time and Partial unemployment. Impediments to work that are forced on the employer (e.g. quarantine, mandatory close down) will not be described here.</td>
<td>There are no thresholds in this respect. Though, the grounds for the respective impediment to work as described by the Labour Code must be given if the employer intends to use it and pay its employees lower compensation for salary than 100% of the average earnings. Idle time - temporary defect of a machine equipment, outage in supplies of raw materials or driving force, incorrect working documents or other operational causes – the employees are entitled to at least 80% of their average earnings. Partial unemployment - temporary limitation of sales of products of the employer or limitation of demand for services provided by the employer - the employees are entitled to at least 60% of their average earnings (please see the next column).</td>
<td>No consent is in general required for using the mentioned impediments to work. Though, as to the partial unemployment impediment, it is necessary to conclude an agreement with the trade union (if there is any) in which it might be agreed that the compensation of salary will be paid to the employees in lower amount than 100% of average earnings. The specific rules are the following. If agreed in the agreement with the union or stipulated in an internal regulation (only if there is no trade union at the employer), the compensation during partial unemployment might be lowered to 60% of the average earnings of the employee (it cannot be lower).</td>

Implementation

- In order to send the employees to impediments to work on the side of the employer, the employer must notify all the employees in question and inform them about the reason and duration of the respective impediment to work.
- For the days when the employees cannot work due to the impediment to work the employer must pay the employees compensation for salary in the amount depending on the specific type of such impediment (60% - 100% of the average earnings).

State Aid

- Employers that pay their employees compensation for salary due to impediments to work might apply for the State Aid that is currently being implemented by the Czech government to support employers during the COVID-19 crisis. The below text is made based on the current information that may change in near future.
- Idle time - the employees are entitled to 80% of their average earnings, 50% thereof should be compensated by the state.
- Partial unemployment - the employees are entitled to at least 60% of their earnings (depending on the collective agreement or respective internal regulation), 50% thereof should be compensated by the state.
- The employers should apply for the State Aid at the beginning of the month following the month for which the compensation was paid to the employees. This means that the salary compensations paid to the employees for March should be reimbursed upon application of the employer at the beginning of April. Details were not published yet.

Short-time work – Information for Europe
Short-time work concept in Estonian jurisdiction is identifiable as reduction of wages for up to three months upon employer’s failure to provide work to the agreed extent due to unforeseen economic circumstances beyond employer’s control if the payment of the agreed wages would be unreasonably burdensome.

There is no minimum loss of work required or maximum reduction covered set by law.

- Not required
- The employee has the right to refuse to perform work in proportion to reduction of the wages.
- In case the employee don’t agree with the reduction of wages, he/she has the right to cancel the employment contract notifying thereof five working days in advance. Upon cancellation the employee shall be paid compensation to the extent of one month’s average wages of the employee by the employer. In addition the employee has the right to receive a benefit from the Estonian Unemployment Insurance Fund.

<td>Social security contribution shall be paid from the reduced wages (i.e. the wage reduction will result in lower social security benefits for the employee).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

- Before reducing wages the employer shall offer the employee other work, if possible.
- Before reducing wages an employer shall inform the trustee / shop steward or, in his or her absence, the employees at lease 14 days before the planned reduction of wages.
- The trustee / shop steward or the employee shall give his or her opinion within seven calendar days as of the receipt of the employer's notice.

Settlement

The employer shall provide notice of the reduction of wages no less than 14 calendar days in advance.
The Estonian Unemployment Insurance Fund will be paying subsidies to compensate employees’ wages for up to two months during period March-May 2020. The amount of the subsidy will be 70% of the average monthly wage of the employee but no more than €1000. The employer must pay a wage of at least €150 to the employee.

The employer comply with at least two of the following terms:

1) The employer must have suffered at least a 30% decline in turnover or revenue for the month they wish to be subsidized for, as compared to the same month last year.

2) The employer is not able to provide at least 30 percent of their employees with agreed workload.

3) The employer has cut the wages of at least 30% of employees by at least 30% or down to the minimum wage.

The wages may be reduced for up to three month over a period of 12 months.

The Estonian Unemployment Insurance Fund will be paying subsidies to compensate employees’ wages for up to two months during period March-May 2020. The amount of the subsidy will be 70% of the average monthly wage of the employee but no more than €1000. The employer must pay a wage of at least €150 to the employee.

The employer comply with at least two of the following terms:

1) The employer must have suffered at least a 30% decline in turnover or revenue for the month they wish to be subsidized for, as compared to the same month last year.

2) The employer is not able to provide at least 30 percent of their employees with agreed workload.

3) The employer has cut the wages of at least 30% of employees by at least 30% or down to the minimum wage.

Short-time work - Key information

In Finland there is no short-time work concept as such. If an employer wishes to reduce working hours, this can be done by agreeing with the employee, on termination grounds related to production-financial reasons or by part-time lay-off for which it is required that the work to be offered has diminished temporarily and the employer cannot offer other full-time work to the employee.

Eligible employee categories

In principle, all employees. If the employer wishes to lay off its personnel, shop stewards, elected representatives and occupational health and safety representatives cannot be laid off unless the work ceases completely and the employer is unable to arrange work that corresponds to the person’s professional skill or is otherwise suitable, or to train the person for some other work.

In addition, the employer is entitled to lay off an employee in a fixed-term employment relationship only if the employee is working as a substitute for a permanent employee and if the employer would be entitled to lay off the permanent employee if the permanent employee were working.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

– The employee and the employer can agree to reduce working hours.
– If the employment agreement does not allow the employer to reduce working hours and the employee does not consent to this, the employer has two (2) options:
  • Termination of the working hours provision of the employment agreement (i.e. not the whole employment agreement)
  • Lay-off the employee part-time
– Termination requires that the employer has production-financial reasons to terminate the employment agreement, i.e. that the work has diminished substantially and permanently.
– Lay-off requires that the work or employer’s possibilities to offer work have diminished temporarily (i.e. max for 90 days).

Settlement

– If the employee finds the reducing of working hours unjustifiable, the employer and the employee can make a settlement agreement in which the employer agrees to pay a certain amount to the employee as indemnification. If no agreement is reached, the employee can claim damages in a court of law.

In both termination and lay-off, the employer has to undergo so-called “co-operation negotiations” either with employees’ representatives or with employees themselves before any decisions can be made if the employer permanently employs at least 20 employees.

Short-time work - Key information

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Characteristics of short-time work concept</th>
<th>Critical thresholds</th>
<th>Employee consent</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Short-time work is a temporary state-funded tool intended to prevent redundancies when companies are facing exceptional circumstances. In response to the current health/economical crisis, the French government has implemented as of 26 March 2020 new legislation facilitating and broadening access to a short-time work scheme in the following cases: (i) Administrative closure of an establishment, (ii) Prohibition by administrative decision of public demonstrations, (iii) (Massive) absence of employees who are critical to business activity, (iv) Temporary interruption of non-essential activities, (v) Suspension of public transport by administrative decision and (vi) Decline in activity linked to the epidemic. Supply difficulties, deterioration of sensitive services, cancellation of orders, etc., are all reasons for using the partial activity system. A company may benefit from a short-time work scheme when it either (1) reduces the working-time of its employees or (2) temporarily shuts down the business.</td>
<td>French labor authorities (so-called “DIRECCTE”) may authorize the implementation of short-time work as from the first hour of work reduced below the legal working-time (i.e. 35 hours per week) provided that the reduction/closing of the business activity is both temporary and collective (e.g. concerns all the employees within a business unit etc.). The proportion of work reduction covered by short-time work schemes is cumulatively limited to (1) a 100% of the legal working-time (i.e. 35 hours per week) and (2) 1,607 hours per year and per employee.</td>
<td>The employee’s consent is not required. However, within companies without a Works Council (so-called Social and Economic Committee) the employer has the obligation to notify its employees of intention to implement short-time work. The protected employees’ (“salarié protégé”) consent is required if the short-time work only affects part of the business, establishment, office or workshop to which the person concerned is assigned or attached (said agreement is not required for a total closure). It should be noted that during the periods of short-time work, the employee’s employment contract is suspended.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
In principle, any employee under an employment contract may be subject to short-time work (e.g. part-time employees, fixed-term contracts, agency workers, apprenticeships etc.).

As per the recently passed legislation, employees on contracts fixed by hours (‘forfait en heures’) or days (‘forfait en jours’) per year may be subject to a short-time work scheme, including when there is no total closure of the business.

Short-time work scheme is compulsory for any protected employee irrespective of the employer’s agreement, if it affects all the employees of the business, establishment, office or workshop to which the person concerned is assigned or attached.

Employees working at the home of their ‘private employer’ and child keepers will benefit, on a temporary and exceptional basis, from the partial activity scheme.

The employees’ compensatory allowance must be at least equal to 70% of the gross remuneration (i.e. approximately 84% of the net remuneration) he they would normally have received (i.e. if they had not been subject to short-time work).

It should be noted that the minimum employee compensatory allowance is €8.03.

As per the recently passed legislation, employers receive an allowance from the government the hourly rate of which is equal to 70% of each employees’ gross hourly wage, capped at 4.5 times the hourly rate of the minimum wage (SMIC) (the gross hourly SMIC rate currently being 10.15€ for 2020). Nonetheless, the employer has the possibility to pay to his employees a supplementary allowance in order to either fully or partially cover their remuneration shortfall (i.e. compensatory allowance covering over 70% of the employees’ gross remuneration). Under such hypothesis, the employer would entirely bear the costs inherent to the supplementary allowance.

For employees working at the home of their ‘private employer’ and child keepers, the hourly allowance shall be equal to 80% of net pay, the terms and conditions of which are to be determined by decree.

Employees’ compensatory allowances are partially released from social security contributions (i.e. only subject to the so-called CSG/CRDS contribution which are cumulatively equal 6.7%). Should the employer decide to pay to his employees a supplementary allowance covering over 70% of the employees’ gross remuneration, such payment would also only be subject to the CSG/CRDS contribution (i.e. 6.7%).

Short-time work allowances owed by ‘private employers’ are reimbursed in full and are not subject to the CSG (contribution sociale généralisée, i.e. ‘general social contribution’).
France
Short-time work - Key information

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

- The request to use the short-time work and the submission of the file is made directly online to the labor authority (“DIRECCTE”) via a dedicated website (https://activitepartielle.emploi.gouv.fr/aparts/)
- The Company must indicate the grounds on which its request is based, the foreseeable duration and the number of employees and hours concerned.
- In principle, the employer must notify both the DIRECCTE and the related Works Council its opinion being a condition of the acceptance of short-time work. Therefore, the Works Council must be consulted prior to the employer’s request.
- As per the recently passed legislation on the current COVID-19 crisis, the Works Council opinion may be notified to the DIRECCTE within a period 2 months following the employer’s request of short-time work.
- In the absence of Works Council, companies must directly inform their employees about the implementation of a short-time work.

Settlement

- Applicable regulation states that the administrative authority normally has a maximum 15 day period to process the request (article R.5122-4 of the French Labor Code). However, given the current situation, the time for a response is reduced to 48 hours under the Decree of 25 March 2020. If the administrative authority does not respond within this period, the request is deemed accepted.
- The ASP’s server (service and payment agency), which employers can use to submit a short-time work request, has been overwhelmed, preventing access to many businesses.
- In order not to prejudice businesses, Decree No. 2020-325 of 25 March 2020 provides that the employer may send its request within 30 days of the placement of employees in short-time work scheme when the request is justified on the grounds of exceptional circumstances.
- The DIRECCTE may grant short-time work for a maximum period of 12 months (renewable).
- The employees’ compensatory allowances inherent to short-time work periods are paid by the employer in each pay periods (i.e. the employer perceive the short-time work allowance further to his payment request to the DIRECCTE).

| As mentioned earlier, the DIRECCTE has two days upon receipt of the request to refuse the implementation of short-time work. After this deadline, the employer’s request will be deemed accepted. Requests of short-time work can be made retrospectively (i.e. within a time limit of 30 days prior to the request). If the request relates to a period prior to 30 days before the request, the delay must be justified. In principle, short-time work is limited to a maximum period of 12 months. The employer has one year following the end of the short-time work to request to the DIRECCTE the compensatory allowances he has paid to the employees. | In response to the COVID-19 crisis, the French government has deeply amended the legislation inherent to short-time work as described in the present slides and in particular it has:
- Shortened processing deadlines of short-time work requests both with the labour Administration (i.e. 2 days) and the Works council;
- Increased reimbursement of part of the employees indemnification to the employer within a limit of 4.5 times the national minimal wage (please refer to above slides);
- Broadened access to short-time work to executives under “forfait-jours” and “forfait-heures” working-time schemes (which includes most of executives in France) including when there is no total closure of the business. | - As part of the recently passed legislation, employers receive a public-funded allowance equal to 100% of the compensatory allowances paid to the employees which is limited to 4.50 times of the national minimum wage.
- At the beginning of the COVID-19 crisis, the French Government had budgeted an amount equal to €8.5 billion in order to fund the increase of short-time work. Nonetheless, the Minister of finance has recently declared that such budget will be exceeded. |

Germany has very effectively used the tools of short-time work during the financial crisis 2008/2009 and it has now made the use of short-time work even more attractive.

The system is quite flexible, it allows employers to adjust the capacity of their work force to their exact needs. Employees who work short-time are entitled to short-time work benefits of 60%/67% of their regular net income. The money is paid out by the employer who in return is reimbursed by the Federal Employment Agency. Short-time work benefits are practically a subsidy and not a loan, i.e. there is no obligation for the employer to repay the benefits later.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

– Formal application to be filed with the Federal Employment Agency before short-time work is implemented

– Application can be filed retroactively but has to be filed before the end of the month in which short-time works begins (e. g. short-term work begins effective 1 April 2020, application has to be filed not later than 30 April 2020)

– Processing time is expected to be not less than six weeks, however, employers do not need to wait for approval by Federal Employment Agency before introducing short-term work

– No blocking period

Settlement

– Applications have to be made on a monthly basis. The respective form is self-explaining and just requires a breakdown of the individual payments to the employees

– Application has to be filed within three months

– Processing time is expected to be somewhere between two and three months.

– Settlement takes place within 14 days after each month

| The maximum period for short-time work benefits is 12 months. | Due to the Covid-19 crisis the German government has
- Reduced the threshold for the minimum number of employees who have to work short-time from 30% to 10%
- Agreed to pay the social security contributions for the short-time work benefits (previously those had to be paid by the employer) | Short-time work benefits and the applicable social security contributions are completely funded by the Federal Employment Agency. |

Further important remarks

Before short-time work benefits can be applied for, the employee must utilize
- any holiday entitlement from previous years
- any untaken and unplanned holiday for the current year (some exceptions apply)
- any overtime compensation entitlements.

Alternative / Additional measures

There is one brand-new feature that provides for the liquidity of an employer: with immediate effect, the employer can postpone the payments to the social security authorities for two months (without interest)

Other measures:
- Using flexible working time accounts
- Company holidays
- Terminations for operational reasons

| Short-time work (rotating) arrangements are possible either (a) on the basis of a mutual agreement or (b) unilaterally in case of reduction of the employer’s business activities to avoid dismissals and following consultations with the employees representatives. In both cases, the maximum duration is 9 months per calendar year and notifications with the employment authorities are provided. Due to the CoVid-19 crisis, emergency legislation provides employers with the right to unilaterally impose rotating employment for a period of up to 6 months (until 20 September 2020), whereby each employee can be occupied at least 2 weeks on a monthly basis (continuously or intermittently). Employers taking advantage of the above, are obliged to maintain the number must not reduce the number of employees working for the company at the time the above system has been implemented. | - Minimum loss of work required:
  - Normal: N/A (law merely refers to reduction of employment activities).

Employee consent

If the employee is working under full working time arrangement, the consent of the employee would be needed to change his/her employment into a part time arrangement. This means that in the lack of the employee's consent, unilaterally, the employer cannot order part-time work.

As a general rule, amendment to the employment agreement shall be prepared in written form. The most wide-spread form is the hand-written counterpart of such amendment.

An electronic document meeting all of the criteria, as follows, shall be considered as a written deed: if it was disclosed in an electronic file making possible that the information included in the legal declaration may be recalled in an unaltered form, and the person making the legal declaration as well as the date of the declaration is identifiable.

| N/A            | In Hungary a state of danger is in place therefore, various Governmental Decrees are issues frequently, which, among others aim to ensure the „proper“ state of the economic situations. This means that not only employment, but other measures, e.g. financial measures, as follows have been introduced: during the state of danger, a stay of payment is granted for the debtor on his obligation to pay principal payment, interest or fee based on the credit contract, loan contract or financial lease contract that the lender has provided in a businesslike manner (moratorium on payment). The moratorium on payment will expire on 31 December 2020 (this may be extended by decree). The debtor may still fulfill payment, but is not obliged to do so. Modification in the expiry of the time limit for performance also changes the ancillary and non-ancillary obligations that secure the contract. | – Combination of part time work with on-call employment;

Short-time work – Information for Europe
Short-time work - Key information

Characteristics of short-time work concept

In Latvia there is no short-time work concept as such. If an employer wishes to reduce normal working hours, this can be done by agreeing with the employee.

Critical thresholds

There are no minimum numerical thresholds to be applied.

Employee consent

- The employer cannot reduce the working hours below the agreed amount without employee's consent.
- Form of consent: The consent should be given in written form.
- What if an employee does not consent: If there exist termination grounds the employer can terminate the agreement due to the fact that the employee does not consent to the amendments.

<tr>
<td>All employees</td>
<td>There is no maximum covered / “insured” currency &amp; salary</td>
<td>Social security contributions are calculated from the actual salary employee is receiving.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation
- The employee and the employer can agree to reduce working hours upon mutual agreement.
- If the employee does not consent to the reduced working hours the employer can terminate the employment contract if there exist termination grounds.

Settlement
- If the employee believes that the employment termination is unjustified, the employee can bring a claim to court within one month after receiving the termination notice.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation
- The short-time work may be declared by an employer under its unilateral decision.
- Currently there is a draft amendment of the Labour Code of Lithuania, submitted to the Parliament for its consideration, establishing that having declared the short-time work the employer must inform the State Labour Inspectorate within 1 business day. This amendment is yet to be adopted by the Parliament of Lithuania.

Settlement
- An employer must settle with its employee following general order stipulated by the employment contract and the general provisions of the Labour Code.
- There is no specific regulation in this case.

| There are no time constraints established. However, following the Labour Code of Lithuania, an employment contract may be terminated by the written resignation of an employee by giving the employer notice thereof at least five working days in advance if the employee has been on the short-time work for more than 30 consecutive days, or for more than 45 days over the past 12 months. | - The employers preserving the jobs during the short-time work will be paid with state subsidies to compensate the paid salaries.
- The amount of the subsidy will be calculated accordingly to the salary of an employee. The amount of subsidy will be 60 or 90 per cent of the paid salary. The subsidy of 90 per cent will be paid to those employers whose activities are restricted by the Government of Lithuania due to quarantine effective in Lithuania. Short-time work – Key information

Employment relief

The short-term work – initiatives that in essence are aimed at reducing the working-time for the employees, are not allowed under Norwegian law. Please find our overview of government initiatives below:

- Lower threshold to temporary lay off employees. A reduction in the employer payment period of 14 days notification period + 15 days of payment period to a possible 2 days notification period and 2 days payment period for the employer. Thereafter the government take over the salary payment obligation for a period of 18 additional days calculated up to a limited up to a salary of Nok 599 148. After this period the government will cover 62.4% of salary, maximum amount approximately NOK 426 000 (approx. 70% of salary)

- Parental leave in connection with closed school and child care: originally parents had 10 days each to take care of children in case of illness. The amount of days are increased with immediate effect with 10 days per parent in order to handle the extraordinary situation in connection. The payment is limited to a salary basis of NOK 599 158 and the employers payment period for the additional number of days is three days.

- Illness due to virus infection: the employer obligation is to pay salary the first 16 days of sick leave. Under the new situation, provided that illness is connected with the virus, the employer period of payment obligation is reduced to 3 days with full salary.

- No medical certification is required if the employee is ill due to virus infection for the first 16 days. In fact, employees are encouraged not to seek doctor certification if symptoms are Covid-19 related.

- Reduction in employers social security contribution obligation with 4 percent for two months, from originally 14.1% (please note that some areas in Norway have reduced rate and it is uncertain if the same reduction applies). Payment deadline for employers social security for the months March and April is extended to 15. August 2020.

Short-time work – Information for Europe
Characteristics of short-time work concept

According to the legal regulations being in force at the moment, the following possibilities can be considered:

- changing the terms and conditions of the employment contract by giving an employee a notice of termination or
- changing the terms and conditions of the employment contract by concluding with the employee the agreement amending the initial employment contract or
- concluding an agreement on suspension of the labour law provisions, as well as
- concluding an agreement on the temporary application of less favourable employment conditions.

Critical thresholds

- Minimum loss of work required:
  Provisions in this respect are general. The only condition for the conclusion of the agreement on suspension of the labour law provisions or on the temporary application of less favourable employment conditions is the financial situation of the employer.

- Maximum work reduction covered:
  The labour law provisions do not expressly provide for maximum work reduction, this should be considered individually by each company.

Employee consent

- □ Not required  □ Required  ✗ It depends

- Form of consent:
  In case of changing the terms and conditions of the employment contract, as a rule, the employee's signature is obtained under the employer's statement - but consent is not required. In case of concluding agreements we have mentioned, the consultations with employees are obligatory.

- What if an employee does not consent:
  The lack of the employee consent does not affect to the validity of termination notice (in case of the changing the terms and conditions of the employment contract in such form)

Short-time work - Key information

Implementation and settlement

- Termination of employees’ working and pay conditions (made via amending notice) is a unilateral statement of the employer changing the conditions of employment. Such notice must be given to the employee in writing (electronic version is also applicable assuming that the document has been signed with the use of the qualified electronic signature). If the employer employs at least 20 persons and the termination of employees’ working and pay conditions concerns a specific number of employees over a period not longer than 30 days (10 employees if the employer employs fewer than 100 employees; 10 per cent of the employees if the employer employs between 100 and 300 employees; or 30 employees if the employer employs 300 employees or more) the procedures provided for in the act on specific terms and conditions for terminating employment relationships with employees for reasons not related to the employees shall be additionally respected.

- It should be remembered that in case of an amending notice, the changes will only take effect after the lapse of the notice period - unless the parties sign an agreement amending the terms and conditions of employment.

- Consultations with the employees are required if the employer would like to conclude an agreement on suspension of the labour law provisions, or an agreement on the temporary application of less favourable employment conditions.

- The agreements mentioned above are signed by the employer and a trade union that represents employees. If there is no trade union acting in the employer’s establishment, the agreement is concluded by the employer and representatives of employees appointed in accordance with the standard procedure adopted by the employer.

- The agreement should be filed with the competent district labour inspector by the employer.

- According to the assumptions of the bill, an employer will be able to apply for a subsidy from the Guaranteed Employee Benefits Fund, after meeting certain criteria.
- The amount of the aid depends on whether the employer has announced an economic downtime or reduced the working hours of employees.  |
| In case of concluding an agreement to suspend the application of labour law provisions or agreement to apply less favourable employment conditions, may be concluded for a maximum period of 3 years. |
- taking over by the State the payment of social contributions for 3 months for certain entrepreneur meeting specified criteria,
- subsidy to the remuneration of employees under certain rules,
- the possibility of reducing employees' working hours by 20%, but no more than up to half time,
- making the working time of employees more flexible (shortening of uninterrupted resting periods, introduction of flexible working hours). |

Further important remarks

- The bill is being considered by the Sejm, and is expected to be adopted on 27 March 2020, and the changes proposed in the bill are to become effective as of 1 April 2020.

Alternative / Additional measures

- In the current situation, the possibility of taking overdue vacation leaves by employees can be considered.

- Forcing an employee to take holidays due for a current year, is not permitted.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

Technical Unemployment

Common implementation aspects for both technical unemployment as regulated under the Labor Code, as well as under the specific legislation issued by the Romanian legislative authorities in the context of COVID-19 pandemic:

- Issuance by employer of individual/collective decisions for implementing the technical unemployment, comprising the period within which the individual employment agreements are to be suspended, as well as the affected employees;
- Registration with the employees’ general register (“REVISAL”) of the suspension of the individual employment agreements – the registration shall include both the start and the end date of the suspension of the individual employment agreements;
- Agreements’ suspension must be registered with REVISAL no later than the prior day before the date of starting/ending of the suspension, under the penalty of administrative sanctions that may be applied by the competent labor authorities;
- Suspension of work relations for technical unemployment reasons has as legal effects the suspension of performing the work by employees and, accordingly, suspension of payment of salary rights by the employer. However, as mentioned, the employees benefit from a technical unemployment allowance.

Specific aspects regarding the technical unemployment regulated under Labor Code

- The Labor Code does not provide for a determined period within which the individual employment agreements may be suspended for technical unemployment reasons. However, such period may not be undetermined.

Specific aspects regarding the technical unemployment regulated under the specific legislation issued by the Romanian legislative authorities in the context of COVID-19 pandemic:

- The technical unemployment under the conditions regulated by the special legislation is to be applicable only during the state of emergency period, as decreed by the Romanian competent authorities.
- Companies, as employers, are eligible to benefit from the provisions of the special legislation for implementing the technical unemployment during the state of emergency, provided that they meet certain mandatory requirements (i.e., totally or partially interruption of the activity or reduction of the activity as a result of COVID-19 pandemic).

Work-time reduction

- The employers shall initiate the prior consultation of the representative trade union or of the employees’ representatives, as the case may be, with respect to reduction of the working schedule from 5 to 4 days/week – their consent is not mandatory, but they have to be consulted;
- Decision of the employer regarding the working-time and salary rights reduction of the employees;
- Registration with REVISAL of employees’ working program and salary amendment under the legal terms (i.e. one working day prior to the amendment), under the penalty of administrative sanctions that may be applied by the competent labor authorities.

Settlement

Technical unemployment

- Resume of the activity and register with the REVISAL the date of resuming the employees’ activity, so as to avoid any potential fine sanction.

Work-time reduction

- Check with REVISAL the proper registration of the amendment of the working schedule from 4 to 5 days per week and the corresponding amendment of the salary rights so as to avoid any potential fine sanction.

| As a rule, the technical unemployment may be declared by the companies with no time constrains. However, in order to beneficiate from the facilities granted by from the unemployment insurance budget, the companies shall observe a certain timeframe (i.e. duration of the state of emergency as decreed in Romania). The reduction of the work time from 5 days to 4 days per week, may be declared by the company only after a period of 30 working days of temporary reduction of the activity. | See Pt. 2. | – If the employers meet one of the following criteria, during the state of emergency, the technical unemployment allowance can be supported by the unemployment insurance budget up to the limit of 75% of the average gross salary (i.e. RON 5,429):
  - Their activity is interrupted, totally or partially or is reduced as a result of the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic for the duration of the state of emergency, based on a solemn declaration of the employer. |

Further important remarks

It is important to note that further supporting pieces of legislation for the implementation of the measures for assistance of the companies affected by the COVID-19 crisis are expected in the next period.

Alternative / Additional measures

As alternative measures the companies may implement by unilateral decision, during the state of emergency, and if the employee’s job is suitable for:
- Teleworking policies;
- Work-from-home policies.

Also, the employees may request free paid days granted to parents for child care during the period in which the relevant authorities have decided to suspend the courses or to close down educational establishments due to unfavorable meteorological conditions or other extreme situations, such as the current COVID-19 pandemic. The allowance for the free paid days is 75% of the base salary for one worked day, but no more than the 75% of the average gross national salary (i.e. RON 5,429) calculated per day. The net value of the allowance paid by the employer can be recovered from the state budget.

Further important remarks

According to the Russian Labor Code the employer has a right to change conditions established in the employment contract (including working regime) at its initiative only in case of changes in the organizational or technological conditions or other re-organization activity of the employer, if the existing working conditions of the employee cannot be retained (except for change in job function). The recent court practice shows that courts consider the following changes to be legitimate:

- Changes in technical equipment and (or) work/production technology;
- Structural re-organization of the employer’s activity; decrease of the employee’s volume of work and his/her job duties along with retention of the employee’s main job function;
- Improvement of work places as a result of their assessment, etc.

At the same time employees and (or) labor controlling authorities shall possibly successfully challenge the following grounds for changes of working regime at the employer’s initiative:

- Decrease of the company’s volume of work (for example decrease of sales), worsening of the company’s financial conditions;
- Exclusion of one job position from the employer’s staff schedule and set up of a new job position with lower base salary (“camouflaging” of staff reduction);
- Change of the employee’s job function.

Alternative / Additional measures

- Annual paid leave at the employee’s initiative;
- Unpaid leave at the employee’s initiative;
- Distant character of work;
- Redundancy.

| Unfortunately, we do not have legislation such as “Kurzarbeit” in Germany.

(no employees representatives – no reduction of salary is such situation). | There is no alternative measures currently available under the Slovak law. The only option is to:
– agree with the employees on shorter time work,
– order the holiday (with 14 days prior notice),
– reduction of salary (max. up to 60 % salary) however with the agreement of the employees representative.

Short-time work – Key information

Eligible employee categories

All employees may agree with their employers to conclude a short-time employment contract. Short-time work employment pursuant to rules in the social insurance field may only be exercised by those employees that acquire such rights on the basis of pension and disability insurance regulations, health insurance regulations or regulations on parental leave.

Maximum covered / “insured” salary

Notwithstanding the fact whether the short-time employment is based on mutual agreement or the law (rules in the social insurance field) short-time worker shall be entitled to remuneration according to the actual working obligation, therefore proportionately depending on the working time for which he is employed.

Impact on social security contributions

In case the short-time employment is based on mutual agreement social security contributions shall be paid proportionately depending on the working time for which such employee is employed. Employee working short-time pursuant to rules in the social insurance field shall have the same rights arising from social insurance as if he worked full-time.

Time constraints

Contractual parties may agree to change the employment relationship from full time employment to short time employment anytime. In cases involving changes resulting from the exercise of the right to short-time work in accordance with the regulations governing health insurance or the regulations governing parental protection an amendment to the existing employment agreement may be concluded once the employee obtains such right before the competent state authority.

Implementation

In the event the contractual parties wish to change the employment relationship from full time employment to short time employment a new employment contract must be concluded. In cases involving changes resulting from the exercise of the right to short-time work in accordance with the regulations governing health insurance or the regulations governing parental protection an amendment to the existing employment agreement shall be concluded.

Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures

Subject to certain conditions the Act on the intervention measures to stem and mitigate the of the COVID-19 epidemic and its consequences for citizens and the economy includes the following measures for private-sector employers:

- reimbursement of wage compensations paid to workers by employers who are temporarily unable to provide workers with work as a result of the COVID 19 epidemic
- exemption from social security contributions,
- exemption from pension and disability insurance contributions for working employees
- reimbursement of compensations paid to workers by employers due to temporary absence from work because of illness or injury

Implementation and Settlement process

- If the collective short-time work measure is due to majeure force:
  - Simultaneously: (i) inform to the employees and competent labour authority of the measures to be adopted; (ii) furnish to the worker’s representatives, if any, and the referred labour authority a report on the relevant loss of activity, as well as any documentation they may deem necessary in order to evidence force majeure.
  - Decision of the competent labour authority within 5 days about the existence or otherwise of majeure force, which will enter into effect as from the date of the triggering event.

- If the collective short-time work measure is due to economic, technical, production-related and organizational reasons:
  - Notice of the company’s intention on the workers’ legal representatives, so that they may set up the representative committee in order to negotiate during the consultation period.
  - Once the representative committee has been formed, the procedure must be instituted within not more than 5 days by serving electronic notice on the competent labour authority, while simultaneously commencing the consultation period.
  - This notice must be accompanied by a report explaining the grounds for the short-time work and a technical report evidencing that such grounds have arisen (technical report not needed if the only reason alleged is economic).
  - Consultation period: maximum of 7 days (or less if the parties reach an agreement earlier). The consultation period may conclude with or without agreement. If an agreement is not reached, the employer could still unilaterally apply the collective measure.
  - On conclusion of the consultation period, employers must electronically notify the labour authorities of their decision, which will become effective as from the date of such notification.
  - An individual notice must be served on each affected employee.

Short-time work – Information for Europe
Sweden has updated its short-time work allowance system, where the employer’s personnel costs now can be reduced up to 53% while the state covers part of the employees’ wages. This will help the company to improve cash flow while still maintain employees. The employees’ short-time work shall be subject to an reduction of 20, 40 or 60 % of the employee’s normal work time.

The employees’ salary will be reduced by 4, 6 or 7.5 % depending on the level reduced work time.

- Minimum loss of work required: N/A
- Maximum work reduction covered: A maximum of 60% work time reduction is covered by the state aid.

- Form of consent: Employers not subject to a collective agreement must enter into an agreement of short-time work with 70% of the employees to be eligible for the state aid. Such agreement must be written form and shall be attached to the application to the Agency for Economic and Regional Growth (Sw. Tillväxtverket).
- What if an employee does not consent: An employee which works for an employer not bound by a collective agreement, which does not sign a written agreement with the employer does not grant the employer a right for state aid for short-time work.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation of Preliminary support

- The implementation process is divided into two steps
  - Application for approval
  - Application to receive preliminary support for short-time work.
- The applications shall be filed to Tillväxtverket.
- Employers are allowed to seek state aid for short-term work from the 16th of March, 2020.
- Processing time of Tillväxtverket is still unknown. The process will however be digital, which allows for a swift process.
- After receiving the maximum amount of state aid for short-time work (6+3 months), the employer will be block for applying for additional state aid for short-time work under a 24-month period.

Settlement

- After obtaining a decision on preliminary support for short-term work, Aon must provide Tillväktverket with ongoing information about the circumstances of the short-term work (e.g. that it is still eligible for the support that has been granted).
- Information shall be provided to Tillväxtverket within 3 months from the first day of the preliminary support for the short-term work.

The instrument of short-time work compensation (SWC) is intended to compensate for a company’s partial or total loss of work of a temporary nature. Such loss of work may be due to economic reasons or measures taken by the authorities. The SWC is intended in particular to prevent redundancies.

The application process takes place in two stages:

1.) A preliminary application (German “Voranmeldung”) must be filed with competent authority and

2.) The SWC must be requested from the unemployment insurance by means of a settlement request after each accounting period (e.g. after each month).

- Minimum loss of work required:
- A loss of working hours can only be credited if, per accounting period, it accounts for at least 10% of the total number of working hours worked by the employees of either the entire company or of an individual department (in case such department is recognized as independently operating by the Swiss authorities).
- Within a period of 24 months the maximum period during which SWC is permissible is 12 months.
- In case the reduction of working hours is more than 85%, the SWC can be granted for a maximum of 4 months only.

- □ Not required ☒ Required ☐ It depends
- Form of consent:
  a governmental form needs to be signed by the employee and submitted with the initial application for SWC.*
- In case an employee does not agree with the short-time-work, SWC will not be granted and the employer will need to continue paying the salary according to the employment contract. The employer, however, is free to terminate the employment contract (by observing the applicable notice period)

* Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures: The governmental form regarding the consent of the employee only needs to be submitted with the accounting statement to the unemployment insurance and not - as usual – with the initial application.

Implementation & Settlement Process

Implementation

- Formal application to be filed with competent Swiss authority
- Application must contain the following main information: completed official form “Voranmeldung von Kurzarbeit” including the reason for application (e.g. cause and effect relationship between extraordinary external circumstances and temporary decrease in work), number of employees affected by short-time work, sales figures of the past 2 years, expected sales for the next accounting period, consent of the employees*, extract from the commercial register*, organisation chart. (*Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures: currently not required at the stage of the implementation.)
- Application must be filed 10 days prior to the start of short time work (Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures: lead time has been cancelled.)
- Processing time for an authority decision on the implementation application under normal circumstances is about 10 days
- Blocked period (waiting period) is 3 – 10 working days (Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures: no blocked period – entitlement as of day 1)

Settlement

- The request needs to be filed with the unemployment insurance within 3 months after each accounting period
- The employer must file the completed form “Antrag und Abrechnung von Kurzarbeitsentschädigung” together with detailed work time reports of the last accounting period as well as an overview of the hours during which the employees were not occupied (i.e. had no work to do).

Characteristics of short-time work concept

Short time work is defined as a temporary shortening of the employment period in the whole or part of the workplace by at least 1/3 or complete or partial suspension of operation for at least 4 weeks without the condition of continuation not longer than 3 months (can be extended up to 6 months by the President).

Critical thresholds

- Maximum short time work period: 3 months (can be extended up to 6 months by President)

Employee consent

- X Not required  □ Required  □ It depends
- Material changes in the employment agreement must be agreed in writing by the employees such as decrease in wage.
- However, short time work process does not require employee consent.

| Any employee who is eligible for unemployment insurance under the Law;
  – employed 60 days prior to the commencement of the short-term work and
  – has at least 450 days of paid unemployment insurance premium within the last three years. | If the weekly working hours are reduced minimum by 1/3, an equation is applied to calculate the amount of wage to be paid by the employer and the fund. Monthly amount of the allowance is capped; maximum amount payable by the fund is approximately USD 675.
[The daily allowance is 60% of the average daily gross income to be calculated taking into account the employee’s income subject to social security premium payment for the last 12 months. However, such amount cannot be more than 150% of the monthly gross minimum wage.] | The employment agreement is deemed to be suspended during the term of the short-term work, accordingly, the employer’s responsibility to pay any social security contributions ceases during the duration of the short-term work. |

Short-time work - Key information

Time constraints

The short-time working allowance is applicable for 3 months but can be extended up to 6 months by the President.

Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures

The unemployment fund established by the Unemployment Insurance Law (‘the Law’) has already been in place. On 26 March 2020, the Law has been amended reducing the eligibility requirements and simplified the application/approval process.

Public funding

Short-term work is a mechanism available under the Law which allows companies to utilize the mechanism under economic, industrial or regional crises or compelling reasons which lead to significant reduction of the normal working hours or temporary or complete suspension of business activities at the affected workplace. Pandemic is specified as a compelling reason under the Law.

Employees are paid the allowance during the non-working period up to certain limits and continue to be entitled to General Health Insurance. Pension contributions/rights will cease since the employment agreement is suspended during the term of the short-term work.

Further important remarks

- Minimum 1/3 of the work must be lost temporarily, or
- the work must be completely or partially suspended for at least 4 weeks
- Employee consent is not required. Notifying the employees through a collective announcement (or informing the Union for Collective Labour Agreements) is sufficient to fulfil notification requirements.
- Redundancies will not allowed during the term of the short-term work (except for due to unethical reasons)

Alternative / Additional measures

- Unless the employer has applied for short-term work allowance, the general principles in the Employment Law will be applicable; Compelling reasons at the workplace which pause the work for more than 1 week entitle both the employer and the employee to terminate the employment agreement on just grounds.
- Reduced working hours may be recovered later (in 4 months once back to normal working hours) provided that the additional working hours do not exceed three hours per day. (4 months can be extended up to 8 months by President)
- Unpaid leave is available provided that the employee agrees in writing.

Short-time work – Key information

There are several options available to employers to flex their workforce in the context of the COVID-19 crisis. These include:

- Short-time working: putting employees on short-time working due to a downturn in work.
- Lay-off: Laying off employees due to a downturn in work.
- JRS: The Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme (JRS) was announced by the Government on 20 March 2020 to support employers who would otherwise have made redundancies.

Options available

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Key Considerations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Lay-off and short-time working: Lay off means an employer provides employees with no work (and no pay), whereas short-time working involves providing less work (and less pay), for a period while retaining them as employees.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Redundancy pay: There's no limit on how long an employee can be put on short-time or laid off. However, an employee can, subject to certain conditions, apply for redundancy and claim redundancy pay if they have been laid-off or on short-time working:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- 4 weeks in a row</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- 6 weeks in a 13-week period</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JRS: As an alternative, the JRS is open to all UK employers and covers 80% of the cost of wages up to a maximum of £2,500 per employee per month.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Formalities

- Short-time working/lay-off: An employer requires the contractual right to place an employee on short-time working or lay off. If an employer does not have the contractual right, they will need to maintain the employee's full pay unless they are able to agree reduced pay with the employee.
- Employee agreement: It is important for employers to inform employees and attempt negotiation where possible as, in the absence of an express or implied contractual right, the employer is likely to be in breach of contract.
- JRS: Under the JRS, affected workers will need to be designated as “furloughed workers” and the employees will need to agree to the change.

Short-time work - Key information

Eligible employee categories

- Lay-off and short-time working: Any type of employee could have lay-off or short-time working provisions in their contracts of employment. However, it is unusual and typically would only be included for employees in the manufacturing industry.

- Employee consent: Without the contractual right, it is rare for an employer to have the implied right of lay-off or short-time working and this would need to be agreed with the employee.

- JRS: All types of employees who were on the payroll as at 28 February 2020 are eligible unless they are in receipt of SSP or on unpaid leave. Further, to qualify for the JRS, employees must not undertake any work for their employer while they are furloughed.

Maximum covered / “insured” salary

- Lay-off and short-time working: Employees should receive full pay in any short-time working or lay-off period unless their employment contract allows unpaid or reduced pay short-time working or lay-offs or this has been agreed separately with the employees.

- SGP: If employees are unpaid, they may be entitled to a statutory guarantee payment (SGP). The maximum SGP is £29 a day for 5 workless days in any 3-month period.

- JRS: Under the JRS, the grant covers 80% of the employee's salary up to a maximum of £2,500 per employee per month. An employer may top up at their discretion.

Impact on social security contributions

- Payments: Any payments paid are subject to normal deductions including tax and national insurance contributions.

- JRS: It is expected that the JRS grant to be paid to employers will 80% up to a maximum of £2,500 per month per employee plus Employer national insurance contributions and pension contributions.

Implementation

Implementing lay off and short-time working:
If the employer has a contractual right to put their employees on short-time working or lay-off, there is no prescribed procedure.

Contract permits lay-off or short-time working
Employer should write to the affected employees and confirm the period of lay off or short-time, including details of the expected length of time and pay.

Contract does not permit lay-off or short-time working
Employers should inform employees and attempt negotiation where possible. If an employer lays off an employee or puts them on short-time working in the absence of an express or implied contractual right to do so, the employer will be breach of contract.

Implementing the JRS:
Employers will need to:

- Decide which employees to designate as furloughed employees.
- Notify those employees of the intended change and consider whether it needs to consult with employee representatives or trade unions.
- Agree the change with the furloughed employees. Most employment contracts will not permit an employer to reduce an employee’s pay, provide them with no work, without agreement.
- Confirm the employees’ new status in writing. Ideally, the employer should advise how long it expects furlough leave to continue. Employers may wish to put employees on furlough leave for an initial period, subject to review.
- Apply for the JRS grant through the new online portal. The relevant authorities are currently setting this up.
- Ensure that the employees do not carry out any further work for that employer while they are furloughed.
United Kingdom

Short-time work – Key information

Time constraints

- There are no specific time constraints when implementing short-time working or lay-off.
- However, if the employer seeks the employees' consent to changes to their terms and conditions (such as reduced pay), if employees refuse and the alternative would be to terminate and re-engage or make redundancies, this may trigger collective consultation requirements if there is a proposal to terminate 20 or more employees in a 90 day period.
- If collective consultation is triggered it requires that consultation begins "in good time" and at least 30 or 45 days (depending on the numbers affected) before the first dismissal takes effect.

Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures

In addition to the JRS scheme mentioned above, the Government has adopted other measures including cashflow bridge options.

The Government has also legislated for Statutory Sick Pay (SSP) to be paid from day 1, rather than day 4, of the absence from work if a worker is absent from work due to sickness or need to self-isolate caused by COVID-19.

The Government will also refund employers with fewer than 250 employee up to 14 days' SSP per eligible employee. The Government will work with employers over the coming months to set up the repayment mechanism for employers as soon as possible.

Public funding

The Government has announced several measures to help employers who are struggling with the economic consequences of COVID-19. These include:

- the JRS;
- business rates reliefs;
- a Coronavirus Business Interruption Loan Scheme;
- a grant scheme for small businesses;
- a grant scheme for the self-employed; and
- a dedicated helpline for those who need a deferral period on their tax liabilities.

Further important remarks

While guidance has been issued on the JRS scheme we await confirmation of the practical details on how employers will be able to apply for the grant.

Alternative / Additional measures

Where lay-off, short-time working or the JRS are not available or appropriate, depending on the employer's circumstances, the employer may wish to consider other alternative arrangements such as: redeployment, asking employees to take annual leave, agreeing unpaid leave or sabbaticals or, ultimately, making redundancies.

− There are two different legislations depending on the number of employees involved.
− Application must contain the following main information: circumstances which justify an exceptional measure, identification of affected employees, term during which adopted measures will be in force.
− According to labor law, processing time is about 30 days. Experience indicates that it takes longer.

Settlement

− If settlement is reached the Ministry of Labor approves the agreement.
− If there is no settlement, and even though lack of agreement employers implement suspensions or other measures that reduces labor conditions, employees could considered themselves as dismissed and claim the payment of legal severance and pending salaries.

Short-time work – Information outside of Europe
Characteristics of short-time work concept

Australia does not have a distinct legal concept of 'short-time working'.

Full-time or part-time employees may, at any time, agree to vary their working hours with their employer. The employee’s consent is generally necessary subject to the terms of any applicable industrial instrument.

Generally speaking, employers can unilaterally vary the working hours of casual employees without the need to obtain employee consent, although this will depend on the terms of any applicable industrial instruments and/or employment contracts.

Critical thresholds

A reduction in working hours is considered a private matter between employer and employee. Accordingly, no “thresholds” are applied.

Employee consent

- Employee consent is generally required for full-time and part-time workers subject to the terms of any applicable industrial instrument.

- Form of consent:
  Consent can be verbal, but we recommend obtaining written consent to evidence the agreement. An exchange of emails is generally suitable.

- What if an employee does not consent:
  If an employee does not consent to a reduction in working hours, this may amount to a breach of the employment contract or a breach of an applicable industrial instrument. The employee may be entitled to damages, and additional penalties may apply.

Casual employees can have their hours reduced by the employer unilaterally. Applicable industrial instruments or employment contracts may impose additional obligations including, for example, obligations to consult with staff prior to changing rostering arrangements.</td>
<td>There are no arrangements for any part of any employee’s salary to be covered or “insured” following a reduction in an employee’s working hours.</td>
<td>Employers in Australia are not required to make “social security” contributions as such. However, an employer’s obligation to make contributions to an employee’s superannuation fund are calculated on the basis of the employee’s income. Subject to the terms of an applicable industrial instrument, contract or other discrete legislation which may apply to certain types of employment, where an employee’s income is reduced as a result of an agreement to reduce the employee’s working hours, the employer’s obligation to make corresponding superannuation contributions will be reduced in proportion with the reduction in the employee’s income.</td>

Special governmental Covid-19 crisis measures

The Australian Government has introduced a range of changes to social security eligibility entitlements to support employees whose income has been affected by COVID-19. Employees whose hours have been reduced, and whose income falls below a defined threshold, may be eligible for social security payments.

Public funding

– Employees who have had their hours reduced and whose income falls below a defined threshold may be eligible to receive social security payments.
– Employers may be eligible to access various assistance programs being implemented by the Australian Government.

Short-time work – Key information

Due to COVID-19 emergency, companies and its employees can agree upon a reduction of the working hours with a maximum of 50% worktime currently equivalent to 45 hours weekly.

Accordingly, the employer can reduce the remuneration and the employee can access the unemployment funds.

The employer is liable for paying social security contributions calculated over the reduced remuneration.

Additionally, companies and employees can agree upon a total suspension of the employment contract, in which case employees can access fully to unemployment funds. The employer’s activities must be partially or totally paralyzed.

The employment contract will also be legally suspended in case the authority decrees a full stop of activities.

Only companies under particular circumstances can agree upon workday schedule reduction with their employees, such as a) over a 20% decrease in sales in the period October 2019-March 2020, compared to the last commercial year (2018), b) going under a restructuring process due to bankruptcy, c) going under an advisory process due to insolvency and d) companies exempted from authority suspension declaration in order to maintain minimum operation continuity or protect the life or health of its employees.

These pacts will be in effect for 5 months.

Full suspension pacts will last maximum 6 months counted from the date the law that allows them is published.

Legal suspension will last the same period the authority decree.

Employment suspension and workday reduction must be agreed upon with each employee, prior consulting the respective union.

Please note that in Chile there is no work council, thus unions operate on a company per company basis.

Characteristics of short-time work concept

In Colombia there is a figure called “contract review” in which the parties review the conditions of the contract when unforeseeable and serious alterations of economic normality occur (Covid-19). The parties, by mutual agreement, can modify the working conditions such as working hours, functions, salary. However, this figure is not common used, and in the current situation the Labor Ministry suggest other measures mentioned in the slide 5.

Critical thresholds

The parties agree on the working conditions to be modified by mutual covenant. The employee’s salary can be reduced as long as this also implies a modification in the functions and/or working hours.

| There is no time constraint according to Mexican Employment Law but if there is an enforced instruction by competent authority then must be only for the period of time stipulated. | - Federal Government issued preventive measures that recommend suspending activities.
- Health and Occupational Hazard measures stipulated by the employment authority.
- Suspending activities of vulnerable employees: seniors, pregnant women, chronically ill persons, who must be paid 100% salary
- Some State Governments issued an extension for the payment of local payroll taxes | There is no public funding regulated in Mexico but Government could establish one according to tax incentives being the requirements discretionaries. |

Further important remarks

- Working conditions cannot be changed solely by the employer or it will be considered an unjustified dismissal with settlement payments.
- If the competent authorities issue the “Decree of Health Emergency”, the employment relationship will be suspended and the employer is obliged to pay compensation of at least one minimum wage per day for up to 30 days.

* On March 26th it has not yet been issued by the federal authority.

Alternative / Additional measures

- Comply with the Health and Security measures in the workplace.
- Review the conditions of salary payment in order to consider them as welfare benefits.
