Disclaimer

This publication contains information obtained from government communiqués, the public domain or secondary sources. The directives of the Central and State governments are evolving in real-time. We would be reviewing and updating this accordingly. This version was last updated on 20 May 2020.

Even with the extension of the lockdown, restrictions that have been imposed in various sectors and on various activities will continue to remain in force, unless explicitly superseded by the evolving guidelines.
The nationwide lockdown imposed in India on 25 March 2020 is now being eased in a carefully calibrated manner, to permit businesses and industries to get back on track, for enabling livelihoods, and for reinvigorating the economy. While the rigorous lockdown regime is starting to show results, we have to constantly remain on guard, especially given the size and the vulnerability of our population. An equally compelling requirement is the need to protect the livelihoods of those at the bottom of the pyramid.

Soon after the onset of this pandemic in India, the firm took the initiative to reach out to the union government, as well as to various state governments, offering our services, our specialized expertise and our solutions, for mapping and predicting its spread and for containing its effects. We are very proud to have stepped up to support governments in this hour of national need, and we continue to be at the heart of this campaign, not only at the centre, but also across nine states. Apart from epidemic control, our teams are also working tirelessly to ensure the frictionless flow of essential commodities, as well as to revive investments and the economic engine.

India, as well as other nations across the world, are confronting very complex dilemmas, and are having to make difficult choices: between the need to ensure the isolation and the insulation of the population from the virus, and the compulsion to enable people to resume their lives and livelihoods. In India, these decisions have additional layers of complexity—given the size of our population, the variety of our states, and the nature of our settlement patterns—particularly urban clustering. The government has chosen to ease lockdown restrictions in a very carefully calibrated manner, in an attempt to wisely balance these opposing compulsions.

We have attempted to compile this compendium of lockdown policies, regulations and guidelines, spanning those prescribed by the Union government as well as the various States and Union Territories (UTs).

It is hoped that this document will prove useful to businesses as well as to individuals in their efforts to restart their enterprises, taking into account the lockdown policy architecture, as applicable.

We are alive to the fact that these guidelines are dynamic, and we have tried to capture the situation and landscape as on 20 May 2020. We will attempt to update the document as the situation evolves.

This document also contains links to the appropriate authorities who are to be approached for obtaining necessary permissions.

We trust that this compendium will prove useful in these challenging times.
