KPMG in Malaysia
kpmg.com/my
Today’s global and rapidly changing business environment presents challenges to financial institutions as they are exposed to a range of financial crimes including money laundering and terrorism financing ("ML/TF"), which could result in substantial financial loss and damage to the reputation of the businesses.

Organised crime groups and terrorists are increasingly using sophisticated international networks and technologies to move or store funds and assets that are likely to pass through financial systems. As such, financial institutions must implement effective Anti-Money Laundering and Counter Terrorism Financing ("AML/CFT") strategies to mitigate the risk of these financial crimes and continue to enhance their controls in the complex environment.

Recent years have seen an increased readiness of regulators to pursue and impose tougher penalties on financial institutions for their breaches of regulations, particularly in the areas of money laundering, terrorist financing and sanction breaches where unprecedented fines have been levied.

Regulators expect financial institutions to implement robust, sustainable and effective AML Framework including policies, procedures and controls to ensure compliance with the relevant ML/TF legislative and regulatory requirements.

Information about key service offerings and how KPMG can assist and collaborate with you is summarised below.
The Challenges

1. Institutions are required to develop, implement, and maintain a risk based AML strategy that will protect the institution from risks associated with ML/TF and other financial crimes through proactive compliance with relevant AML/CFT laws and regulations.

2. Growing sophistication of AML/CFT typologies, including complications arising from use of new technology & cross-border issues.

3. Managing the scope of various activities including having an adequate number of personnel with required skill set particularly in large global organisations.

4. Developing remediation action plans that are cost effective and does not affect the growth strategy and enterprise goals.

5. Providing adequate change management and training tools to facilitate the adoption of desired AML/CFT behaviour across the organisation.

Overall, KPMG has experience in all aspects of Financial Crime Compliance.
Effective AML/CFT and Sanctions Compliance systems and controls are required to guard the organisation against the risks of money laundering ("ML"), tax evasion and terrorist financing ("TF"). Both financial institutions and non-financial institutions are faced with an increasingly regulated environment, heightened regulatory scrutiny and complexity of AML/CFT and sanctions requirements at local and international levels.

In addition to the challenge of managing immediate interaction with the authorities, organizations must also be vigilant in addressing vulnerabilities in underlying infrastructure (data, documentation, systems, and controls and resources).

We are committed to addressing your concerns:

- How to ensure your AML/CFT and sanctions compliance framework remains manageable while meeting local and international regulatory requirements;
- Identifying AML/CFT and sanctions risks in business practices and implementing appropriate, effective and sustainable controls to manage these risks, including transaction screening and monitoring systems; and
- Responding to regulatory examinations and requests and addressing underlying risk issues to ensure regulatory compliance.

Our Service Offerings Match Your Needs

Benefits

- Help you identify your key ML, TF and sanction risks and insight into how these risks are / can be mitigated;
- Leverage our rich industry knowledge and experience;
- Practical recommendations to help mitigate risks, in order of risk priority; and
- Ongoing communication, training, knowledge transfer and enhancement of money laundering, terrorist financing and sanctions risk awareness.
Global regulators, including the BNM and SC recommend that organisations adopt a Risk Based Approach ("RBA") in their AML/CFT compliance programmes. Organisations should take appropriate steps to identify and assess their risks, and document this assessment in order to be able to demonstrate their understanding.

An Institutional ML/TF Risk Assessment ("IRA") (also known as Enterprise Wide ML/TF Risk Assessment – ("EWRA")) forms the basis for applying a RBA to AML/CFT compliance programme.

IRA allows an organisation to demonstrate how, and to what extent they are vulnerable to ML/TF risks, how they currently mitigate these risks, therefore allowing them to adopt appropriate measures to manage any residual risks according to the organisation’s risk appetite.

AML & Sanctions Services – Thematic Review on Trade Finance Business

- A thematic review focused on trade finance provides an overall idea about current state of trade based AML framework and enables management to design and implement robust AML controls specific to trade into an overarching AML programme.

- KPMG’s Trade Finance program seeks to strengthen each of three essential pillars of an effective counter-Trade-Based Money Laundering (“TBML”) programme.

Illustrative Activities

Using trade to launder money has been a lucrative area for money launderers with over 80% of trade requiring trade finance, as such a key focus for regulators of financial institutions.

Having an AML/CFT programme with specific guidance on controls to guard against TBML is key for minimising and controlling the risks of misuse of trade to launder money.

Components of an effective counter-TBML programme include:

1. Structuring an effective governance model;
2. Developing strong general AML/CFT controls;
3. Implementing robust trade specific controls; and
4. Providing structured training programmes to front line and back end staff to equip them with tools to combat TBML.
Screening System review is conducted to assess the strength, effectiveness and ability of the screening system to identify suspicious / unusual names and transactions.

The review is also conducted to ascertain the appropriateness and sufficiency of the threshold, search engine and suppression rules. This includes evaluating the coverage on the institution’s products / services across the delivery and distribution channels at name screening and transaction screening level.

KPMG can assist in the following:

- Conduct a full review of your existing screening programme, through the analysis of your business model in relation to your requirements, regulatory expectations, and standard industry practices;
- Review screening scenarios, matching parameters, fuzzy logic and risk factors adopted in the screening system and assess whether small changes in inputs and risk factor values fall within the expected range;
- Assess any filtering (i.e. exclusionary clauses) against source applications / data sets to ensure the rationale and reasoning for use of any exclusions has been clearly documented;
- Review the algorithm and particularly the ability of the screening system to identify names with minor alterations, such as reverse order, partial names, abbreviated names and transliterations;
- Assess the data quality through the review of mapping documentation and data dictionaries to test mapping of data from source system(s) to screening system in order to ensure completeness of transactional data feed.

AML & Sanctions Services – Transaction Monitoring System Review

- Transaction Monitoring (“TM”) is a key component of an effective AML/CFT programme. Global supervisory authorities seek to evaluate organisations on their ability to demonstrate its TM program’s effectiveness in detecting unusual activity and patterns, and the results of the program, such as the number of internal suspicious activity reported, alerts generated, cases investigated, and Suspicious Transaction Reports (“STRs”) filed.

- The ability to successfully monitor transaction activity for unusual behavior, investigate suspect activity, and report potentially suspicious transactions are basic tenets of a successful TM program.

Illustrative Activities

KPMG can assist in the following:

- Conduct a full review of your existing TM program, through analysis of your business model in relation to your requirements, regulatory expectations, and standard industry practices;

- Provide targeted assistance through the full lifecycle of development of your TM program, whether it is in its infancy of development, seeking guidance on program development, or a fully mature system, which desires focused program element refinement; and

- Assist your organisation in its suspicious transaction reporting program, from selecting an appropriate system vendor, strengthening policies and procedures, to testing sample STRs to validate program adherence to regulatory guidance.

Illustrative Services

Transaction Monitoring System Operating Effectiveness Review

The TM System Operating Effectiveness Review reviews your current system settings (i.e. scenarios, segmentation, thresholds and other parameters) and provide recommendations to tune and refine the monitoring settings for a more appropriate coverage of transactions and alerts. Each revision is supported by justification on the basis of the data reviewed.

Transaction monitoring look back reviews

The TM look back review undertakes a review of transactions conducted over an agreed period of time. Where unusual or potentially suspicious activities are identified that should have been alerted but were not alerted, these will be shared for further review and investigations.

Transaction monitoring system vendor selection

Where transaction monitoring is primarily performed manually, the volume of data and reports could place constraints on the bank’s ability to pick out the transactions that are unusual or are potentially suspicious in nature. The TM system vendor selection provides guidance to institutions to evaluate various options based on their specific requirements and choose the most appropriate system vendor.
