

Litigation Support

In the high-stakes world of litigation, the support from rigorous economic and statistical analysis can often tip the scale. The importance of quantitative litigation support is growing as business disputes are becoming increasingly complicated by rapid technological change, the magnitude of available data, and the need for evidence-based economic analyses and conclusions. Organizations are increasingly seeking out advanced economic and statistical consulting services in all stages of a case to understand the full economic implications the case at hand, support hypotheses and arguments through defensible economic theory and expert opinion, and help ensure the development of the strongest case.

Overview

The members of the KPMG LLP (KPMG) Economic and Statistical Consulting (ES) practice have extensive experience in supporting corporations and law firms in litigation and disputes and providing expert testimony. To support our clients, our team of PhD- and Masters-level economists, statisticians, financial analysts and computer scientists provide rigorous analyses and critical insight to complex, real-world client problems. A robust understanding of the market economy and business decisions allows our team to provide clear, informed, and defensible analyses and conclusions with regard to litigation, disputes, and arbitration.

The KPMG approach

Our professionals work closely with clients to identify key issues and create some of the most effective approaches to solving these complex business problems. We also harness other KPMG

Tax and Advisory professionals with a wide range of experiences in specialty areas to assist our clients. Together as a team, we can help businesses, trade associations, law firms, and government agencies by providing a broad range of assistance related to litigation support including:

- Regulatory litigation
- Accounting litigation
- Antitrust and competition
- Bankruptcy and financial distress litigation
- Arbitration
- Corporate transaction litigation
- Disputes
- Expert testimony
- Mergers and acquisitions
- Internal inquiries and investigations.

Methodology

Our team of specialists can address these issues in a robust results-driven fashion. Our team strives to provide results by turning to our strengths:

Data analysis and management

Proper management and preparation of data of any size, including the ever growing prevalence of big data, to promote careful and efficient data analysis. Clients face the questions of what data is relevant, how do we acquire the necessary data, and how do we best present the data. Our team is well qualified to acquire, clean, organize, and analyze data to yield reliable, high-quality results. The professionals of our practice are proficient in a variety of data analysis software applications including STATA, SAS, SQL, R, and Python.

Economic and statistical analysis

Our team has conducted numerous complex, multifaceted analyses allowing us to become leaders in the industry. Our extensive experience includes, but is not limited to, the following approaches: descriptive statistics, regression analysis, financial analysis, statistical analysis, and machine learning. Coupled with the fact that our team can break this information down into a clear, concise explanation yields a very effective litigation tool.

Report writing

Our team understands the importance of comprehensible reports and exhibits. Our training, experience, and extensive background in litigation support allow us to determine the technical merits of a case and break down complexities in an easy to follow manner that facilitates understanding by all parties involved.

Our commitment

Recognizing the complexity of the litigation process that our clients face, the professionals in KPMG's Economic and Statistical Consulting practice are committed to helping our clients throughout the entire litigation process by providing objective and defensible analyses that are rooted in economic theory. Our team of multi-disciplined and highly experienced professionals can provide the economic acumen and analytical framework to resolve client disputes and help address critical business issues.
